One of the principal reasons for the remarkable efficiency, low cost and dependability of the Standard Series Refrigerator is the fact that it uses the latest principles. This is heard that a man in the use of many means of refusing modern power equipment in motion, drove a car where the best 22,000 miles without possible results must be disappointing.

Good Game At Picnic

On Saturday, June 22nd there was a Social Credit picnic held at the lower dam south west of Travers. The sports consisted of soft ball between the Orphans and the south dam team, the Orphans being the winners played the Blue Birds, which was the second game. In addition there was foot racing and a game of foot-ball, lunch was then served and an address on Social Credit was given by Mr. G. Allergoth, of Mills. The principal speaker being Mr. J. H. Blackmore, of Raymond which was very much enjoyed.

Not The Same Man

James Ashmore received a clipping from his brother at Fernie in which it stated: "when the Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Japan arrived at Victoria it was reported that James Ashmore, second steward, jumped over board and was drowned just out of Manila. Ashmore was a wounded veteran of the Great War and complained of the heat for several days before he committed suicide. This is not the James Ashmore of our town as he is very much alive."

(Taken from Minto Journal)

The funeral of Henry Robinson, pioneer of south east Walsh County marked the largest gathering of people held at a similar occasion in this locality.

The services were held Thursday of last week and hundreds of autos brought friends and Masonic brethren to pay last honors to the good old friend and brother.

The obsequies opened with a Masonic service held at the house of the deceased in the shady lawn fronting the house. Conducted by a friend of the family, Deputy Grand Master of Western North Dakota, which was highly appreciated by the brethren present.

The procession formed following the ceremony, which was miles long, then wound its way to the Episcopal church near by where service was held by two ministers of that denomination.

Then the procession continued its way to the Oak cemetery where the interment was made. The Masonic ceremony being used.

The whole ceremony was indeed a fitting tribute to this honored citizen, who was held in high regard, especially by pioneers with whom he had been so long associated.

Mr. Robinson was Mrs. Adam Ferguson's father.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Lillian Orcutt received treatment at the local hospital for a dislocated elbow and broken arm.

The young son of Con. Laback Jr. was under treatment at the local hospital, having run his hand into a wringer.

John Befus was operated on for appendicitis at the local hospital.

Mrs. Drabitt is under treatment in the local hospital.

Buddy Weiss, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, returned to his home Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Woodhill and Mrs. Ed. Sollund, who were patients in the local hospital are convalescing at their homes.

Baby James Keegstra had the misfortune to badly burn his foot on some hot ashes and is a patient in the local hospital. Although the burn is very severe, no fatal results are looked for.

George Smith is progressing favorably, following an operation for appendicitis in the local hospital on Thursday.

Elsie McDougall left the hospital Wednesday for home.

Baseball Items

Champion capped the honors in the league fixture here Monday, proving too much for Nanton's hustling nine. Nanton's moundsmen could not solve the heavy artillery of the local nine and were touched for 23 runs. The final score was 23-0. Fred Steeves pitched his first shut out of the season and fanned 12 men.

Champion battery—Steeves and Watts.

Nanton battery—MacKenzie, Buck, Thompson and Atwood.

Umpire—I. Fisher.

Rebacht and Champion met on the local diamond on Sunday with a score of 32 for Champion. The game was slow throughout. Champion battery: Walker—Hargrave, Enchanta, Galt—Malmberg. Umpire—McIntyre.

Rain Needed

Weather conditions here in a way are not of the brightest, crops are doing fairly well but a good general rain is needed as the growth has sapped the moisture out. They are still showing a good healthy color, but the weeds are now beginning to make headway, for this reason as well rain would be welcome. Saturday, though not excessively hot, was a hard day as a drying wind was blowing from the south west. The cool winds that have prevailed have been a great benefit.

Attend Vulcan W. I.

Mrs. Jean Anderson, R. J. Beaubien, Alexander, R. J. Baker and Bastin represented the Champion W. I. at Vulcan when that branch entertained the neighboring Institutes on Friday afternoon in the United church. The programme consisted of two short one act plays presented by the Vulcan ladies, and a delightful vocal solo by Master McPherson accompanied by Rev. V. E. Smith. Delicious refreshments were served.

Miss Jean Anderson and Mrs. G. L. Dupre, present and past leaders of the C.G.I.T., were the guests of honor Thursday evening when the girls entertained at the home of Mrs. Ed. Luff. The evening was spent in games after which the honor guests were presented with tokens in appreciation of their work.

Monday, Dominion Day

Announcement was received in town of the marriage of Miss Rachel Catherine Wilson to Mr. Harold Perry Coates on Wednesday, June 12th at Spokane. Mr. and Mrs. Coates will reside at Edgewood, B. C. Miss Wilson taught music in the Champion district for several years.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the thought of her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her independent father loses his money, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler life. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home where she can be as irresponsible as she wishes. After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. Now Go On With The Story

"Sensible man! All this education business is stuff and nonsense unless it fits a boy to earn his living, which nine times out of ten it doesn't do. Look at Aunt Adam. His people scribbled and saved to send him to college. I don't say he got nothing out of it; but here he is back in Pine Ridge running a dairy ranch. Tell me, child, was your father really lost his money?"

"Most of it, I'm afraid. We're renting the city house and the family now live at Edgemore for the present."

"Where's Edgemore?"

"About twenty-five miles from town. It's Mother's old home, but Aunt Judy owns it. She won't let Dad pay a cent of rent."

"Who's Aunt Judy?"

"Forgot you didn't know all about us," replied the girl. "Aunt Judy is mother's younger sister. She lived with us for years, and took care of us children when we were little."

"And Louise, your father's sister, lives with you too?"

"Yes. She teaches in a very high school."

"High-hat," echoed Cousin Columbine, plainly mystified.

Nancy laughed, and explained: "That's only slang. Perhaps it's an Eastern variety that hasn't come to Pine Ridge. It means swell, Cousin Columbine—awfully stylish, you know. Aunt Louise is clever. She's earned a good salary for years."

"Well, we live to learn," admitted the old lady briskly. "High-hat! It's really expressive when you come to analyse it. So you're all the same under the same roof. I should think you'd like cats and dogs."

The girl laughed again.

"We don't, honestly, though Aunt Louise thinks Aunt Judy spoils us."

from a distance?" put in Jack. "On horseback?"

"Most of them; but they came in wagons too, or in old-fashioned over-stage coaches drawn by mules. One member brought over a hundred miles through the mountains, and arrived with a boot on one foot, a brogan on the other, and wearing an old coat that he'd slept in for the first half year."

"What was he supposed to represent?" Mark Adam asked to represent the struggle of those old days which you young folks never realize. See those tall red cliffs over to the right, Jack? That's the entrance to the Garden of the Gods."

"It is!"

In his excitement the boy would have stood up for a better view, but Nancy's bag across his knees prevented him.

"I remember my father bringing me down on horseback, and calling it a tiny girl," said Cousin Columbine. "I sat astride in front of him and we rode all through the Garden looking for cattle. It was vacant land then, and Father was so impressed with the rock formation that he considered pre-empting it, and then gave up the idea, thinking the land worthless."

"Imagine owning the Garden of the Gods?" gazed Jack. "Has it always gone by that name, I wonder?"

"It has as long as I remember; but the early settlers called the place Red Rocks. No need to encourage a stiff neck, Jack, by trying to see out of the back of your head. We'll all drive down some day and explore the place."

"If the West had seemed wonderful from a car window, it was twice wonderful from Mark Adam's dilapidated Ford. The young Nelsons were never to forget that their father wound up the old Indian pass (a good road now, though narrow enough in spots to cause a shiver to run down Nancy's spine) and it would have been impossible to express just what they felt. That spectacular beauty was new to both of them. Glimpes of rushing water far below—the rocky cliffs and hillsides far above—sharp curves appearing with alarming frequency, and over everything a soft, deep azure such as they had not imagined, was as Nancy wrote the family later, too wonderful for any words of hers."

"There!" exclaimed Cousin Columbine when those impressive cliffs were left behind, "that's over safely. Time was when that pass was really dangerous. It's a boulevard now compared with those days. Thanks for blowing the horn so often, Mark. I know you did it for my benefit, though my worst enemy never called me nervous. There's Matthew drawn up beside the road. Do you suppose he's had a breakdown? That's the worst of yours is getting pretty ancient."

"There's plenty of life in that truck yet," defended Mark. "All my bashful brother wants, most likely, is for us to get home first so he won't have to describe these—er—newcomers to Aurora Tubbs. Matt says Aurora takes away his power of speech when she sings questions to him. He says it's no wonder Victor Tubbs went into a decline. Hi, there, haw, you're us to low you home!"

The older Adam smiled a negative as they passed; and Nancy said: "Doesn't your brother ever wear a hat?"

"Not 'n't you'd notice it. Dad says that's all Matt learned in college—going bare-headed."

Mark turned to throw a smile at Nancy and barely escaped colliding with a rock.

"Mind your driving," ordered Miss Columbine.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the youth with meekness; and turned his head again, this time to wink.

The winter's day had seemed almost balmy to the New Englanders; but as they reached more open country and the shadows of afternoon began to deepen, Nancy was uncomfortably conscious of the changed atmosphere and lack of lap robe. Thus it was a relief when Cousin Columbine announced that they were nearly home.

"Stop after you cross the track, Mark, and let them get a good look at the Peak from this side—our side, I call it. You see, I've lived in the shadow of that mountain since the day I was born, and it seems to belong to me."

Mark nodded, crossed the track, turned sharply to the left and stopped the car, while Nancy uttered a cry of genuine delight. Cousin Columbine had not exaggerated. Pike's Peak was beautiful from here, its snowy crest lifting above a forest of dark pines. Said Jack, after an awed moment: "That's great, isn't it?"

"I'm glad to see that you appreciate nature, for all I have to offer except hospitality. This is Pike Ridge, my dears. I dare say it looks provincial to you; but it's home to me."

Nancy's eyes strayed from the mountain, and with difficulty she suppressed another exclamation—one of dismay. Pike Ridge! Why it was a moment, that a struggling, dusty street! Had they travelled two thousand miles in order to spend weeks, months, goodness knows how long, in such a spot? The grandeur of the mountain was forgotten in that desperate moment. All the girl saw was a row of brown frame buildings, their chimneys rising steeply to the height of an imaginary second story, their clapboards bare of paint, their porches sagging.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

PICTURE

A white lane goes into the west. A lane that leaps into the great big crest. On either side black pines stand up. Against the sun's bright gold cup. From the trees bold blackbirds wing; Black needles swing. The white road gleams. In day's last light. Above a star gold, gold, but white.

Successful Surgery

Completes Most Delicate Operation Known To Medical Science

A delicate brain operation, doctors believe, will restore Ivan Olesen, 30-year-old accident victim, to normal health.

Performed in the University hospital, the operation involved "scraping" the brain. This removed pressure on the brain and certain degeneration of the tissues. It is one of the most delicate operations known to medical science.

Prior to the operation, young Olesen had been in a semi-conscious condition for three months in the hospital. The youngster suffered head injuries when he was thrown and dragged by a horse.

British research shows that chilled beef can be held in good condition 60 to 70 days in an atmosphere containing 10 to 20 per cent of carbon dioxide.

Disease germs cannot live in the Antarctic region, which is perhaps the healthiest area on the face of the globe.

Is One Who Ignores Common Courtesy Of The Road

It is true, as we all know, that many persons, otherwise polite and considerate, when put at the wheel of an automobile become seized of the obsession that they are lords—mistresses—of creation, have rights superior to the rights of common people who walk, need have no regard for the ordinary rules of courteous conduct. It is a pity, but such is the fact, and in this fact lies the explanation of many an accident. There are women who drive in the placid assumption that male drivers will accord them right of way under all circumstances; that a motor car driven by a woman just naturally is shown the courtesies extended a lady in her drawing-room.

There are men who use the public thoroughfares as though they were private roads on their country estates. Courtesy? That's for the other fellow. Common sense? A pretence. The device for incompetent drivers, they think. Each of these chaps sets himself up as a king of the highway and let traffic beware!

Some drivers offend in ignorance of the decent conventions of motoring, and good might be accomplished by an official admonition to those receiving their first permits. They should be told to use the horn sparingly—that excessive use is an offense under the law. It should be impressed upon them that all elements in traffic have equal rights, and that the good driver, even possessing right of way, makes due allowance for pedestrians and the weaker party for causes of pedestrians damaging automobiles are as rare as cases of automobiles breaking up railway locomotives.

It should be made very plain to them that efficiency in driving a motor car should be sought as keenly, and prized as highly, as efficiency at bridge or golf or making pie—

It is a sad thought that driver simply does not have accidents, and does not startle people out of a year's goodness.

Unfortunately it is not only the new drivers who need to be reminded of these things. Many men and women have operated motor vehicles for years and still lack even the most elementary qualifications of efficiency. For them there isn't much hope of change. They go on, with such luck as may be, and we must hope for the best. But from the youngsters coming along in the wheel boys and girls motor-conscious from their first years of understanding, something better should be expected.—Ottawa Journal.

World's Third Richest Man

For the information of gangsters, the fabulously wealthy Maharajah of Kapurthala would like it known that he has brought none of his magnificent collection of family jewels with him during his visit to the United States. The Indian potentate, who arrived in New York on the Normandie, is reputedly the third richest man in the world.

Little Helps For This Week

If thou has run with the footmen and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if in the land of peace wherein thou trustedst they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan? Jeremiah 12:5.

How couldst thou hang upon the cross, to whom a weary hour is loss. Or how the scorn and scouring brook. Woo shrinkst from a scornful look?

A heart unloving among kindred has love towards God's saints. If you have a cold heart towards a servant or a friend, why should you wonder if you have no fervor towards God? If you are cold in your private prayers we should be earthy and dull in the most devout religious order; if we cannot bear the vexations of a convent, how should we bear the contradictions of sinners, and if a little pain overcomes us how could we endure a cross? If we have no tender cheerful affectionate thought and love for those with whom our daily hours are spent, how should we feel the ardor of love to the unknown and evil, the ungrateful and repulsive?—H. E. Manning.

Stamp Collector Was Lucky

Found Precious Stamp In Lot He Bought For Small Sum

A rarity of philately—the one penny Shakespearean charity stamp issued in Great Britain—was discovered by Charles A. Davis of Dorchester, Mass., while looking through a large collection of 19th century stamps he purchased 10 years ago for a "song."

The stamp, bearing a likeness of the Earl of Arvon, clean and undamaged, is virtually priceless. It is the only known copy in America, and one of few throughout the world.

It was among the British local stamps, issued by the National Carriers Co. some time between 1873 and 1875. These stamps were used by private concerns which carried mail and packages in competition with government mails, and came under the heading of "local" stamps.

These stamps were part of a large stock which Davis bought for $25.

Stealing Fish Proved Costly

Two Men Heavily Sentenced For Taking Carp In Austria

Two men are serving terms in an Austrian prison for a meal they did not enjoy. They stole two carp from a fountain in a park in Baden, not knowing that the fishy exhibits were under the protection of the Austrian Office of Ancient Monuments, experts having decided they were over 100 years old. Although they told the judge they hadn't been able to eat the fish because the cook could not make them palatable, the magistrate sentenced the thieves to two months' hard labor.

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHY BY ALFRED BINZ

Happiness is a state of mind. Nature never duplicates. A rich mind is better than a full purse. After all, your's is only one point of view. A day without a good deed is a day lost. A prosperous fool is a pale in the neck. Don't wait until he is dead before you praise him. The law assumes you're innocent until you're guilty.

The accompanying chart shows how the price of gasoline to the retailer has decreased and the gasoline tax has increased since 1924. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

FALLING PRICES—RISING TAXES

In 1924 the average price to the retailer of all gasoline sold in Canada was 26.6 cents per Imperial gallon. Since 1924 the price has fallen almost continuously and for 1933 and 1934 it stood at 18.8 cents—nearly eight cents less than in 1924.

"But", you say, "gasoline does not cost me eight cents less a gallon than ten years ago."

You are right, and this is why: In 1924 the gasoline tax was new in Canada and the total gasoline tax collected in that year amounted to an average of only a little more than 1/4 of one cent for each gallon consumed. But as the price of gasoline fell the tax on gasoline rose to higher and higher levels until in 1933 it amounted to nearly 5 1/2 cents for each gallon consumed in Canada.

When you buy a gallon of Imperial gasoline you also pay other taxes totalling about 8/10 of one cent. The profit which Imperial Oil earned on each gallon of gasoline that it made and sold during 1934 was just over 5/10 of one cent per Imperial gallon.
